JAMES CLANCY'S POLI THEATER. Broncho Billy and the Schoolmistress Pleased.

About as good a western drams as yesterday, and is also to be shown ompand and is entitled Broncho Billy and the Schoolmistress, and features Sheriff Anderson. It is a thrilling tale proughout, and the love stery that is sheriff Anderson. It is a thrilling tale inroughout and the love story that is infoded brought out appliance most iberaily. Another good feature is one to the Vitagraph players with Jean, he famous dog, as one of the principal sctors. It follows: As unusually strong picture for the humanity it shows, is Playmates. The dea has been used before in The Little Major, but that story isn's, in externals, any thing like this, which is whelly fresh. The chief value of the picture comes from the humanity of its scenes. That access in the partor, when the little scores down in his nighties, picased the saudience very much. Miss Julia as the mother of the little hov.

That access is not a partor of the picture comes from the humanity of its scenes. That access is not a partor of the picture comes from the humanity of its scenes. That access is not a partor of the picture comes from the humanity of its scenes. That we should prove the picture of the picture comes from the humanity of its scenes. That the partor of the picture is not proved to a partor of the picture of the p is Swayne Gordon plays an emotional role as the mother of the little boy, who is played by Pio Foley very well indeed. Mus Mason, in the role of the child's nurse, gives a realistic and highly competent interpretation. It is the feature of the week, surely it is a picture to recummend to everyone.

Something special for the children sam also included on the bill, a film of two subjects, Earl's Court, London, and Kitty in Dreamland. The first part of the fifth is educational and also very amusing, showing all the pleasure derives utilized and also shows a group of elephants laking a swim and bath. The other portion of the film, Kitty in Dreamland, is a picture which every mother should make an effort to have the little one see, I is a fantasy and a worthy accessor to luck and the Beanstalk, which was

A CHANTED CALENDAR.

First came the primrese, On the bank high, Like a maiden tooking forth From the window of a towar When the hattle rolla below. So looked she, And naw the storms go by.

Then came the wind flower is the valley left behind. As a wounded maden, pale With purple streaks of woe When the battle has rolled by the left of and fro. So toticted aire.

Disheveled in the wind.

Then came the daletes.
On the first of May,
Like a bannered show's advance,
While the crowd runs by the way,
With ten thousand flowers about them,
They came trooping through the fields,
As dappy people come.
So come they,
As a happy people come
When the war has colled away,
With cance and tabor, pipe and drum
And all make hollday.

Then came the cowslip,
Like a dancer in the fair;
She spread her little coat of green,
And on it danced she.
With a filer bound about her brow,
A golden filer round her brow.

And rubles in her hatr -- Sydney Dough. THE RUMOR OF THE ROSE.

It's still the midst of wines, but it's unning long the snow
The singing of the shylark and the rumor of the rose.
It takes but love to near it.
And love believes it true.
And so she waits by life's green gates.
Lintil the violete due.

The snowdritts block the highway and the fields are snowed awa; But still the rumor reaches from the bloomy vales of Mar. The rumor of the race, Beat, Hlows across the wrate lift. And forth in her beauty with Boybud the snowdrift still.

The wild wind rours and ruilles at the windows and the door;
But somewhere silver voices take of rong dreams once more.
There's lots of told yet, maske.
But beyond the ley strain.
The rumor of the a winds.
On the soft, white feet of dream.
Ballimore Sun.
